SUBJECT: Transmitting Schematic Comparison of Various Berlin Proposals

In order to make for ease of comparison, we have prepared the statched schematic presentations of various Berlin proposals. Tab A juxtaposes the Soviet and Western proposals made at Geneva on July 28, 1959. Tab B compares (in so far as this is possible considering that the British mesorandum handed us on October 21 contains specific language on only two items) the U.S. draft declaration shown to the President and handed to Ambassador Caccia with the British suggestions for a possible new interim arrangement on Berlin.

My memorandum to you of October 23, 1959, also discusses the salient features of the latest American and British papers.

6. Disputes Mechanism

A committee of representatives of US, UK, France and USSR will be set up within a month of date agreement enters into force to supervise and take measures implementing these arrangements.

All disputes about access will be raised and settled between the Four Governments, which will establish a quadripartite commission meeting in Berlin to examine such and seek solutions in the first instance. If necessary, the commission may consult German experts.

7. Role of the United Nations

None.

The Secretary General of the United Mations will be requested to have a representative and a staff in Berlin, who will have free access to all of the city for the purpose of reporting propaganda activities in conflict with the foregoing principles. The Four Governments will consult with the Secretary General on appropriate action to be taken on any such report.

8. Negotiations Between the Two German States

US, UK, France and USSR to announce they favor setting up an all-German committee of representatives of the two parts of Germany to consider a peace treaty with Germany and to work out measures on reunification of Germany and development of contacts. All decisions will be taken by agreement between the two sides. If no agreement reached within the all-German committee after the one and one-half year period, the states represented at the Geneva Conference will again negotiate on West Berlin.
